How We Work

We begin by learning about your lifestyle and expectations in a brief questionnaire. We arrange a one-hour consultation at your site in which we walk the property and discuss your ideas in greater detail.

Based upon our meeting, we study the site more intensively. We take measurements, photograph key areas, and identify the natural patterns of sun, wind, and drainage. We evaluate the soil, existing trees and plants, and structural elements such as sidewalks and creek beds.

We develop a master plan with drawings that indicate placement of architectural elements as well as trees and plants. We prepare a cost estimate in line with your budget.

We discuss the design and drawings with you. We are open to changes and will offer options for achieving your design goals. Many clients prefer that we execute the plan in its entirety to ensure design integrity. Some clients choose to set up the project in stages, installing basic elements at first and filling in additional elements later.

Once you approve the master plan, we develop a set of working drawings for construction and planting as well as a timetable of tasks. For fencing, pools, water sprinklers, lighting, and other construction, we recommend contractors that have proven themselves over the years, or we defer to ones you have chosen. If you like, we can solicit construction bids, supervise contractors, and otherwise manage the entire project. At a minimum, we coordinate the work of contractors and let them bill you directly. We bill only for the tasks completed by our staff.

As the final step, our experienced gardeners install the plants and furnishings. We review the completed design and ensure that you are as pleased with it as we are.
